FISCAL ANALYSIS

ASSUMPTION

Officials at the Department of Labor and Industrial Relations assume this proposal amends several sections in the Missouri Human Rights Act. These changes would take the Missouri Human Rights Act out of substantial equivalence with the Federal Fair Housing Act and that could threaten Missouri Commission on Human Right's (MCHR) ability to continue contracting with the U. S. Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD). MCHR received $404,254 from its last contract with HUD and that paid for 8 FTE's. If MCHR loses its HUD contract, it would have to lay off those 8 employees. The Department received a letter from HUD indicating this proposal would put Missouri out of compliance.

Additionally, this proposal could threaten MCHR's ability to continue contracting with the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission (EEOC). MCHR's current contract with EEOC is $753,350 which pays for 13 FTE's. If MCHR loses its EEOC contract it would have to lay off 13 employees. The Department received a letter from EEOC indicating this proposal would put Missouri out of compliance.

Officials at the Office of Administration - Division of Personnel assume that while this proposal will impact the manner in which employment cases are adjudicated, it is difficult to estimate the impact.

Officials at the Office of Administration - Division of General Services assume this would limit the state's exposure to Missouri Human Rights Act claims to the greater of $500,000 or five times the economic damages awarded by the court resulting in savings to the Legal Expense Fund.

Officials at the Office of Attorney General assume that any potential costs arising from this proposal can be absorbed with existing resources.

Officials at the Department of Conservation assume an unknown impact that will likely be less than $100,000. The amount is based on legal costs if a claim was brought against the Department for employment actions.

Officials at the University of Missouri assume this would result in an adverse fiscal impact for the University greater than $100,000. Under current law, the University has sovereign immunity from wrongful discharge cases. This proposal would legislatively authorize wrongful discharge actions premised upon protected whistle blowing activities.

ASSUMPTION (continued)

Officials at the City of Kansas City assume this proposal would provide savings to the City. First, by making punitive damages not available against political subdivisions of the State, and assuming this includes cities, the City would save at least hundreds of thousands of dollars a year. Second, by changing the standard for reaching a finding of discrimination to require that the action be based on the protected status, this would greatly change the dynamics in settlement, as would the threat of costs and fees for the defendant if a case is baseless. This could save the City hundreds of thousands of dollars per year. However, it appears that economic damages are not limited and non economic damages are capped at $500,000 for all employers. This is not nearly as great a savings as previous versions of this proposal. Overall, this proposal would be a significant savings over current law.

Officials at the Special School District assume an estimated reduction of $25,000 in legal fees and settlements.

Officials at the Lincoln University, Linn State Technical College, Metropolitan Community College, Missouri Department of Transportation, Missouri Southern State University, Missouri State University, Missouri Western State University, Northwest Missouri State University, Office of State Courts Administrator, Parkway School District, St. Louis County and the University of Central Missouri each assume there is no fiscal impact to their organization from this proposal.
